

Biography: Matthew Rose, Global Public Sector Industry Principal, Snowflake

Mr. Matthew Rose is the Global Public Sector Industry Principal at Snowflake, where he leads a team serving government and education organizations. He focuses on public sector needs and bringing solutions and technologies into the public sector market. Before joining Snowflake, he led Adobe's Public Sector Business Development and Strategy. Previously, Matthew served in government, most recently as the DOD's Chief Design Officer, Joint Artificial Intelligence Center's Strategy and Policy Directorate Chief; GSA's Director for Cloud and Infrastructure; and Special Advisor on Technology Protection for the Secretary of Defense. He is a founder of several companies, sits on the Stimson Center and Atlantic Council, and serves in the Army Reserve. Matthew has three graduate degrees and has published extensively on the topics of defense and technology. He resides in Warrenton Virginia with his wife and three children.